WAR TO CONTINUE TO BITTER END.

Turkish People to Assist by Every Possible Means.

Many Moslems to Sacrifice Lives in Order to Safeguard Glory of Islam.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 8.—There is every indication here now that the war against the Balkan allies will be continued to the bitter end, as advised by Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief. Officers of the army join with the Turkish press in applauding the determination of the commander-in-chief to continue the fight, and it is stated that the population of the Turkish empire is ready to assist by every means in its power. At the same time many Moslems are said to have sworn to sacrifice their lives in order to safeguard the glory of Islam.

The Yeni Gazette says today: "If Europe wishes to tear up treaties it may do so, but we will not allow the Koran and the history of Osman to be torn up. All the Turkish ministers, with the grand vizier, aged 84, at their head, as well as our high dignitaries, our soldiers and the whole nation, have sworn to shed their blood in that cause. Those who entertain the idea of abandoning the fatherland will incur the malediction of the Almighty Prophet."

TOWN OF SALONIKI SEIZED.

Turkish Stronghold Occupied by Greeks Under Constantine.

ATHENS, Nov. 8.—The Greek army commanded by Crown Prince Constantine occupied Saloniki, the Turkish stronghold in southwestern Turkey in Europe, at noon today.

GREAT BATTLE IN PROGRESS.

May Be Last, as Armies Are Only Twenty-Five Miles from Capital.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—A great battle is in progress between the Bulgarians and Turks along the line to the Tchataija fortifications, only some 25 miles outside of Constantinople. It is generally believed that this will be the last of the remarkable series of combats which have been going on upwards of a fortnight, with little or no breathing space.

One report received from Sofia last night said the Bulgarians had occupied the Tchataija line, but this remains without confirmation. It probably arose from a despatch sent by Lieutenant Wagner to the Vienna Reichspost, in which he said the Bulgarians had occupied the town of Dellyunus, outside the fort of the same name, which forms one of the Tchataija defenses. The same correspondent added that a fresh battle had started and was spreading along the Tchataija line, the fall of which might be expected at any moment.

While the Turks have another and more modern line of forts between Tchataija and Constantinople, there is little chance, in the opinion of military experts, that they will make a stand there if they are defeated at Tchataija. It is reported, however, that the famous Damascus regiment of the Turkish army has been reserved for this last effort to save the capital.

There is no fresh news today from Adrianople, which was reported last night to have surrendered.

The position at Monastir and at Saloniki, where large Turkish armies are concentrated, is unchanged so far as the outside world has been informed. Neither of these fortresses can hold out long, according to military experts, despite the fact that the Greek army, marching on Monastir, has been checked by meeting a superior force of Turkish troops on the way and having to wait for reinforcements from the army commanded by the crown prince of Greece.

The Montenegrins are finding the Turkish fortress of Scutari a hard nut to crack, and it is again reported today that they have had to retire across the Boyana river, because heavy rains and floods had made it impossible for them to keep up their commissariat service.

The Turks, like true Orientals, know how to keep the world guessing as to their true intention. The Turkish army and people apparently wish the war carried on to the bitter end, and one despatch from Constantinople says the Ottoman government has agreed to do this.

Kiamil Pasha, the aged grand vizier, will doubtless make a determined dip-

DEMOCRATS HOPE TO HOLD ILLINOIS.

May Control Legislature and Elect Two Senators.

Wilson's Plurality Over Roosevelt Continues to Increase.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—Sufficient Democratic strength in the Illinois legislature to enable that party to elect two senators appeared as a possibility today, with the increase of Democratic votes in the southern part of the state. Democrats were hopeful that the new returns would give them possibly 77 members in the house and 27 in the senate, a total of 104 on joint ballot. A majority of a joint ballot is 103. If this result is attained, the Democrats will be able to name a successor to Shelby Cullom and to fill the place forfeited by William Lorimer.

Failing short of this number, the Democrats may find themselves compelled to appeal to the Progressives for consideration, which might give the Progressives an opportunity to name a United States Senator for the short term. Who this Progressive would be is not clear, although political experts here point to the fact that Medill McCormick, manager of the Western headquarters for Colonel Roosevelt, might be the most promising candidate.

Wilson's plurality in Illinois continued to mount today, as returns from the precincts missing last night filtered in. Twenty-four scattered returns gave a gain of 1,881 votes to the President-elect and increased his known lead over Roosevelt to 16,573. Only 17 precincts remain in the uncounted column.

CALIFORNIA STILL IN DOUBT.

Roosevelt Leads Wilson by 130, With 135 Precincts Missing.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—With 135 precincts missing and Roosevelt leading Wilson on the face of returns by 130, California was still in the doubtful column today. Indications were that whatever the finding, the winner's margin will be so small that an official re-count of the entire state probably will be necessary.

IDAHO FOR TAFT.

Unreported Precincts Expected to Show Heavy Democratic Vote.

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 8.—The returns received up to midnight gave Taft 30,241; Wilson 29,700 and Roosevelt 14,628. It is said that the precincts not yet reported will show a heavy Democratic vote. Idaho previously had been reported safe for Taft by 8,000 plurality.

ROOSEVELT FAR IN THE LEAD.

Progressive's Plurality in Minnesota Expected to be 20,000.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 8.—Returns coming now from the rural districts of Minnesota continue to increase the lead attained by Theodore Roosevelt over Woodrow Wilson. He is now 16,141 votes ahead, of the Presidential nominee, and Progressive party leaders declare that the final count will bring his plurality nearly to 20,000. Indications are that the Socialists and Prohibitionists have both made gains over their vote of four years ago.

For United States Senator Knute Nelson, Republican, leads all other candidates. The entire Republican state ticket has been elected. The legislature will be as follows—Republicans 98, Democrats 30, Socialists 1, Prohibitionists 1.

WINS BY 3,000 VOTES.

Brooklyn Street Car Conductor Elected to State Legislature.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—A street car conductor, who did all his campaigning from the rear platform of the car over which he officiates, is one of the successful Brooklyn candidates for the state legislature. He is Joseph Monahan, Democrat, elected from a hitherto rock-ribbed Republican district. His opponents, two lawyers, Edward Kanitz, Republican, and Jacob Kornfeld, Progressive, figured that he would be a bad third, but the result gave him a plurality of nearly 3,000 votes.

STEAMER ARRIVED.

New York, Nov. 8, Canada, from Marseilles.

UNDER ORDERS TO TURKISH WATERS.

Armored Cruisers Tennessee and Montana to Go.

Should Reach Constantinople About November 25.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Two big armored cruisers, the Tennessee and the Montana, have been given rush orders to proceed to Turkish waters to look after the interests of American citizens. The vessels are now in reserve at the Philadelphia navy yard, the Tennessee being the flagship of Rear Admiral Austin M. Knight. They should be ready to sail within 24 hours, and under ordinary conditions would reach Constantinople about Nov. 25, if they proceed with dispatch.

INFORMAL NEGOTIATIONS ON.

Surrender of Constantinople Being Discussed, Says Correspondent.

VIENNA, Nov. 8.—Informal negotiations for the surrender of Constantinople already have been entered upon, according to the correspondent of the Reichspost with the Bulgarian army. He adds that the Bulgarians hope the fall of the Turkish line of forts at Tchataija will be simultaneous with the taking of the fortress of Adrianople.

WITHOUT MEDIATION.

Porte Proposes to Bulgaria to Begin Peace Negotiations.

COLOGNE, Germany, Nov. 8.—It is reported from Sofia, Bulgaria, that the Porte has proposed to Bulgaria to begin peace negotiations without the mediation of the powers, according to a despatch to the Cologne Gazette.

CONCERT BADLY OUT OF TUNE.

Grave Concern Felt Over Bristling International Difficulties.

PARIS, Nov. 8.—The threatened rupture between Austria, Hungary and Servia on the question of Servian access to the Adriatic sea, and the imminensity of numerous other political quicksands caused by the collapse of Turkey are causing grave concern in diplomatic circles in Paris. At the moment when an intimate accord is more desirable than ever before, it is pointed out that the two groups of European nations known as the Triple Alliance and the Triple Entente, which together compose the so-called Concert of Europe, find themselves badly out of tune and arrayed in hostile camps. With Russia leading, France and England are inclined to support the Servian claims on which Austria-Hungary, encouraged by Germany and Italy, has apparently placed a direct veto.

Among other bristling international difficulties are the compensation Roumania will demand as an offset to the aggrandizement of Bulgaria, the future standing of the Dardanelles, Constantinople, Saloniki and Turkey in Asia, the fate of the islands in the Aegean sea, the regimen to be introduced in Albania and the adjustment of the conflicting Austrian and Italian special claims there in such a way that the other powers shall not be prejudiced.

Apart from all these visible controversies, comes news of the proclamation of a Russian protectorate over Chinese territory equal in extent to one third of the whole of Europe.

WILL FOLLOW COMMON COURSE.

Germany, Austria Hungary and Italy Not to Intervene in War.

BERLIN, Nov. 8.—Germany, Austria Hungary and Italy will not intervene in the Balkan situation so long as their special interests are not affected, and unless they are requested to do so by the belligerent nations. This determination was reached during a series of conferences held here between the Marquis Di San Giuolino, Italian foreign minister, the imperial chancellor, and the German foreign secretary, at which the Austrian ambassador was also present.

In a semi-official statement issued today it was announced that the three powers belonging to the triple alliance will follow a common course in regard to the Balkans, while at the same time keeping in friendly touch with the other powers.

The Marquis Di San Giuolino left today.

ASK FOR MAYOR'S RECALL.

Petition Bearing Nearly 24,000 Names Filed in Seattle.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 7.—A petition for the recall of Mayor George F. Cottrell, containing nearly 24,000 names, was filed in the comptroller's office today. It is alleged in the petition that Mayor Cottrell has shown himself lacking in executive ability and moral courage; that he suffers certain persons and certain institutions to interfere in political matters, that he has failed apparently, because of obligations to "certain politicians and socialist agitators" to protect citizens of Seattle in their constitutional rights, and to enforce proper respect for the American flag.

FEMININE VS. FEMINIST.

The Abdication of Woman's Own Kingdom an Inevitable Result of Suffrage Movement.

[Morning Protest.]

It is going to be a fighting year, this 1912. And one of the biggest fights ahead of us is this of anti-suffrage versus suffrage. Amid all the buckling on of armor for the fray which is now going on, it is well to remind ourselves sometimes what the fight is really about, what is actually involved in this battle of the vote, what is the vital principle at stake. So many side issues have been raised in this protracted campaign, we are by now in danger of losing sight of the main reason why feminine again opposes feminist on this particular battlefield.

I do not think that any one will deny that the profoundly antagonistic aims cherished in the two opposed camps are these: the desire to cultivate and preserve woman's independent identity and personality on the part of the anti, versus the desire to extinguish and subjugate the same by merging it in the man's on the part of the suffragist. The anti, or feminine forces, are working to preserve to women a line of their own, the suffragist or feminist to reduce women to a surrender of it by forcing them to adopt that of the man. The antis purpose to keep the balance even in human affairs by cultivating in the two halves of the human race all that makes the sexes complementary to each other, the suffragists to send the scales down all on one side, and that the man's, by urging women to aim at the same tasks and qualities as men. It is not a very proud position for women that we have grown used to hearing suffragists proclaim that to prove herself able to do a man's work and to possess a man's qualities is the highest ambition a woman can set before herself. The feminists have so accustomed us to hear that nothing can cover a woman with glory like the winning of permission to do what a man does, that we are no longer shocked at what is humiliating in this attitude.

But the indignity of this position is not what really matters. The serious thing, of course, is the abdication of woman's own kingdom that is its inevitable consequence. Examine whatever suffragist writing or speaking you will, turn it this way, turn it that, it all comes back to this: execration of the world-old idea of woman's sphere. The very words call forth shrieks of contempt from a suffragist. Infinite harm has already been done by this cheap contempt for what must yet persist and endure when the fashion that makes it smart to deride it will have gone the way of fashions. But just as the sex can be degraded for a time by passing fashions in dress, as it has been by certain recent ones which have coincided with the fashionableness of suffragism in the fashionable classes, so it can be by these fashions of phrase that have temporarily lowered the ideals of the sex to a standard from which it is going to be hard and uphill work to raise them again.

The result of living her life as it has hitherto been lived by woman is that women are the superiors of men in the possession of certain qualities and aptitudes. The infinite diversity, manual and mental, of her housekeeping task, has developed in woman valuable characteristics and capacities which the more one-sided tasks assigned to man are apt to blunt. Suffragists proclaim women's possession of this superiority, and * * * proclaim their desire to abolish it by abolishing the conditions that produced it. They would impose on women those very same masculine tasks which have produced inferiority in men! And this they do in the name of promoting the good of the sex, of the race, in the name of progress!

"ALL THE WORLD TO NOTHING."

"All the World to Nothing," by Wyndham Martyn, is a story of a young man of good family and social position who is reduced from affluence to bankruptcy. Richard Chester, with his pride and sense of honor, will accept no help from his friends, but simply disappears from their world. He intends to go to work and sees no reason why he should not succeed, with youth and intelligence back of him. The experiences which befall him, and the kinds of employment which he is forced to accept, show him how difficult it is to obtain work in a city like New York. The author knows of what he writes, for many of Richard's experiences were his own. Mr. Martyn having been mining engineer, soldier, cowboy, truck driver and book agent before he turned his hand to the making of novels. Richard has many adventures before his affairs are to his liking, especially his love affairs, for he has an enemy who does his best to come between him and the woman he loves.

Norah Ellis, the heroine, is a charming young woman who is forced to marry on a certain date or lose the fortune left by her grandfather. Rather than forfeit the money she weds a man whom she has never seen and who immediately disappears from her life. Norah's experiences are as interesting as those of Richard. She is no timid, shrinking maiden, but a girl of intelligence and courage who cannot be intimidated by threats or forced against her will. The stand she takes towards a disappointed suitor who threatens to destroy her property and undermine her happiness shows the stuff of which she is made.

Other characters include John Chester, millionaire, Richard's only brother, who does not appear to advantage in the early part of the story; Charles Renalls, a young financier, a born fighter and a successful one, but unscrupulous in his methods when aroused to action; Everard Peck, whose experience shows the tragedy of struggle, and who is Richard's friend, their poverty and lack of employment uniting them as could no other bond, and Mendoza, a Portuguese, wily and tricky, manager of a South American gold mine.

The illustrations are by H. R. Leonard and the book is published by Little, Brown & Co.

TO SUCCEED PHILLIPS.

William M. Moore of Providence Temporary General Secretary of New England Workmen.

William M. Moore of Providence, grand treasurer of the New England Workmen, has been appointed temporary general secretary of the organization to succeed Frederick E. Phillips of Central Falls, who committed suicide Wednesday morning.

The work of examining the books of Mr. Phillips is being continued at the order's headquarters in Providence by examiners from the office of the insurance commissioner, under the direction of S. E. Allison, actuary. They have stated that no information will be made known until the examination is completed, and this information, or report, will be made to the finance committee of the organization.

Francis I. Frost, a member of the finance committee, said he confidently believed no irregularities would be found in the books. In the event of a possible defalcation being discovered, he asserted that the amount involved could not be a large one, owing to the financial system employed by the organization. He explained that the books were duly audited early last May, or just previous to the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge, and that the auditors found the accounts to be all right.

Mr. Frost said the financial system of the organization is such that there apparently could be but one possible loophole for irregularities, intentional or otherwise. By the system each lodge keeps a record of all money paid in by its members and the several records are turned over to the auditors, who check them up with the accounts on the books of the general secretary. When the books were audited last May the records on the books and those provided by the different lodges are claimed to have tallied.

There are members of the New England Workmen, however, who do not belong to any particular lodge. They are known as members-at-large and number about 50. The custom has been for them to pay their money directly to the general secretary. This is the only loophole for a possible irregularity, Mr. Frost said. He further stated, however, that Mr. Phillips's records had accounted for the greater proportion of the members-at-large, and that to all appearances the records were complete.

COLONEL WILLIAM E. CLARKE.

Colonel William E. Clarke, city clerk of Providence for 22 years, died at the Homeopathic Hospital of Rhode Island Thursday afternoon, following an operation for an intestinal trouble of several years standing. He was born in Providence November 4, 1846. For several years he kept a drug store, but after nearly losing his life in a fire which burned out the store December 28, 1870, gave up the business. He represented the Third ward in the common council from 1868 to 1883, and the First ward from 1888 to 1890; was alderman from the First ward from January 6, 1890, to May 28, 1890, when he resigned upon his election to the office of city clerk, succeeding Henry V. A. Joslin, who held the office for a period of 11 years. March 8, 1906, he was elected record commissioner and held that office till his death, in addition to the city clerkship.

He was the fifth city clerk since the incorporation of the city in 1832, three of whom died in office. He was the last of the record commissioners, only six of whom have held the office and, with one exception, all have died in office.

Colonel Clarke enlisted in the Eleventh regiment, Rhode Island volunteers, September 15, 1862, and was mustered in October 1. He served as second lieutenant of Company A until March, 1863, when he was promoted to a first lieutenancy. In April he became an aide-de-camp on Brigadier-General Slough's staff and remained in that position until he was mustered out July 13, 1863.

On his return from the war he continued his interest in military matters and was a member of the United Train of Artillery, at that time an organization which vied with the First Light Infantry as one of the crack military companies of the country. He worked up through the various offices until he became lieutenant colonel and was in command when the regiment participated in the parade and review of 40,000 troops at the Centennial Exhibition in Philadelphia in 1876. In 1878 he was chosen colonel and retained command until 1881.

He was also a member of Slocum Post, Grand Army of the Republic, of the Massachusetts Military Order of the Loyal Legion and Corinthian Lodge of Masons.

BLONDE ESKIMOS.

Dr. Anderson Corroborates Story of Discovery of These Tribes in the Far North.

Corroborating in every essential detail the story of the discovery of the blonde Eskimo tribes recently announced by Vilhjalmer Steffansson, Dr. Rudolph Martin Anderson of Forest City, Iowa, his partner in Arctic explorations, has arrived at San Francisco after four and a half years in the Far North.

"It was over on the Cape Bexley territory, on the mainland, and on Prince Albert sound, across and to the south of the Dolphin and Union straits, that Steffansson first got in touch with the blonde aborigines," said Dr. Anderson. "In the spring of 1910, we lost most of our dogs while at Cape Barry, Langton bay and Franklyn bay, where we had wintered. Steffansson and I parted company, he leaving with two Eskimos for the east while I pushed on to the Mackenzie delta for supplies. We met again at Langton bay in the autumn of 1910, and he told me of the queer tribe we had discovered.

"In December we started out and were 31 days crossing 300 miles of the worst strip of land we ever encountered. We explored the little-known Horton river and made records and compass calculations. This is one of the largest rivers flowing into the Arctic. We were going through the barren grounds and putting in a supply of caribou for our dash for Coronation bay in the spring. From Lease river to Dismal lake and to the Copper Mine river and Coronation bay was our course, the last 75 miles over the ice before we found these strange people.

"First we came on a deserted snow village and finally an inhabited village with a population of 46. Many of the men had light moustaches and beards and light hair covered their heads. The eyebrows of these men were light and their eyes were light. Some of the women—not all—had fair skin and rosy cheeks; but their hair was dark, oily and tangled. There were none of the flatnosed Eskimos of the true Mongolian type among this people. Their features bore the characteristics of the Caucasian race. They do not know where they came from and no one else knows.

"They have no records, no history, no legends, and their language, a peculiar tribal dialect, was extremely hard to understand. As to their origin there can be only a guess. They may be survivors of the expedition of Sir John Franklin, lost to the east of their present locality in 1840 or thereabouts, or they may be descendants of the inhabitants of an early Icelandic colony. Among these people there is no hope, no thought worth registering, no ideals, no particular purpose in life. For six months of the year they simply exist, living in snow houses and eating seal meat. In the summer they move to the mainland and subsist on caribou meat. They have no religion and no marriage ceremony, although there is fidelity as a tribal characteristic. Through other Eskimos they do some trading, but precious little.

"Steffansson had seen about 250 more of these people in his summer trip. He found conditions about the same as I have observed. The people we discovered are extremely primitive, having no modern implements of any kind and no modern weapons. They hunt with a crude bow and arrow and spear fish through holes in the ice. They cook their food. In kindling a fire they strike two crystallized stones together."

THE LEAVES GIVE THANKS.

[Georgia Wood Pangborn, in Scribner.]

All the cheerful little leaves
Were lying mute and slain,
Their tender-summer faces
Marred with age and pain,
Through the threadbare forest
Strode the wind and rain.

I wept because the sky was gray,
Because the leaves were dead,
Because the winter came so fast,
And summer's sweet was sped;
And because I, too, was mortal—
"All flesh is grass," I said;

But while I was lamenting
The woods began to sing,
The voice of all dead leaves came up
As when they sang in spring;
"Praise God," they sang, "for winter
And stormy harvesting:

"Praise God, who uses old things
To serve the new things' need
And turns us into earth again
That next year's roots may feed;
Roots but for us and our decay
Would shrivel in the seed.

"To the thousand thousand summers
Our summer has been thrust,
But the snow is very gentle
Lie down, lie down, oh, brothers,
With the thousand summers' dust."

FANCIES.

Although it's through,
We are not due
To rest for long in clover;
For four years hence
The task immense
Will have to be done over.

HEATH IN FAILING HEALTH.

Davis Cup Defenders Forced to Choose Substitute for Coming Challenge Matches.

News has just been received from Austria that, owing to the failing health of R. W. Heath, the Davis cup defenders will be forced to choose a substitute for the experienced internationalist in the coming challenge matches against the English tennis team. The necessity of making a change only a few weeks before the cup matches places the Antipodeans at a disadvantage. It will be difficult for them to find a man who can fill the place left vacant by a player who beat William A. Larned so decisively at Christchurch last January.

The probable choice, it is said, will fall on A. B. Jones, a young expert, who, although conceded to be a skilful tactician, lacks the strength necessary for a gruelling series. It looks, therefore, as though almost the whole task of holding off the invaders this month will devolve upon Norman E. Brookes, the leading tennis light in international contests.

The English team, composed of C. P. Dixon, John C. Parke, A. E. Beamish and F. G. Lowe, is now engaged in practice at Melbourne. Both Davis Cup teams are entered to play in the Victorian championships, which immediately precede the Davis Cup series.

TEN PAGES.

A HIGH TYPE OF PUBLIC SERVANT.

Men in public life of the stamp of the late Congressman Utter of this state are unfortunately so few as to make it natural that the passing of such a one should be attended by somewhat extended comment upon the principles which he represented in politics and in public affairs. Mr. Utter was not a politician in the sense in which that word is generally used. He was not of the sort who delight in the working of the party machinery and take pleasure in caring for the details of political meetings and elections. He was rather of the stamp of the statesman. While he had no taste or adaptation for machine politics he was strongly devoted to his party and worked hard for its success on the public platform, through the medium of his newspaper and in the official positions to which he was chosen. So marked was this disposition to attend to the large things in politics, to the principles rather than the machinery, and so able was he in his advocacy of his party and of those ideas which he believed should underlie all political activity and all public life, that in some respects he was much more a preacher than a politician. His utterances were always on a high level and he discussed partisan or public matters alike from the point of view of the preacher rather than of the political worker.

It was in this respect that Mr. Utter differed radically from many, if not most, of his associates in party activities and in public life. He lived and worked and wrote and voted from a higher plane than is common today, and it was this fact which made him stand out prominently among his fellows and made him strong as a vote winner among those who believe in the possibilities of better things in politics and in official service than are often found, and who took courage from the actual embodiment of those things in the life of this man so often called to render service in a public capacity to his state and to the nation. Yet Mr. Utter was not a Puritan in politics. On the contrary he was broad and liberal in his views and his votes, and displayed an independence in political thought and service which was not always relished by those who led the party to which he belonged. He was staunch and loyal, but never servile.

It is no exaggeration to say that in his death the state and the nation suffer a distinct loss. It is not unknown, but it is rare, that such a man enters public life today, or if he does that he continues as long as did Mr. Utter. Most men of that quality of mind and of such high ideals find little which tempts them into the political arena, and if perchance one here and there ventures he soon finds the atmosphere uncongenial and when the opportunity comes drops out and resumes his place in the great body of private citizens. This was indeed true also of Mr. Utter to some extent, but in his case his voluntary or involuntary retirement at times was speedily followed by new calls to public service. With a high sense of duty he never failed to respond to such demands, though they forced him from his chosen work in life and put him once more in the limelight of publicity, exposing him to the attacks of unscrupulous politicians whose methods are not always as clean and fair as one of lofty principles would wish. When Mr. Utter heard the call to be of service to his party, his state or his country in official position he never hesitated, but left his home and gave himself to the cause of the people.

There is a wholesome lesson in the life of Mr. Utter, and particularly in his public career, which ought not to be lost on the young men of this state, especially those who aspire to public life. Many who enter that life without the high principles which actuated him seem to attain success, but there are few who maintain the dignity and the integrity to which he clung so tenaciously, and through them won so signally the respect and honor of even those who were his party opponents. It would be well for the political activities of the future, whether in the state or in the nation, if there should be in public positions of responsibility and honor more men of the stamp of him who has just laid down his work—humanly speaking, all too soon. May many read aright the lesson of his life and, thus reading, aspire to emulate his example and seek to become the sort of public servant which George H. Utter made admirable and honorable.

PROTECTING THE BALLOT BOX.

It is not likely that election frauds now can affect any considerable result. They may succeed in a small constituency, a town or ward, but they can hardly be successful over a wide area.

Forty years ago the parties put out their own ballots, and it was a common device to print the names winding into and out of each other, so that a "paster," or a gummed slip bearing the name of some independent candidate, could not be stuck on without obscuring more of the ballot than the name of the candidate whom a voter wished to oppose. That was not fraudulent, but it was one means to beat the independent and make everybody vote the straight ticket. Each of the parties printed its ballots on paper of a different color, so that any by-slander could see what party's ticket a man was putting into the box. Thus it was possible to identify a man who voted against the "organization" or in opposition to the wishes of his employers. That was not fraudulent, but it was a form of coercion.

In many localities the vest-pocket ballot was counted—at least, it was counted if cast in favor of the party which controlled the election officers. The vest-pocket ballot was small and thin and several of them could be folded into a regular ballot. Of course the presence of these was conclusive evidence of fraud and yet they were often counted when voted by the hired men of the political faction which controlled the election officers.

Registration has nearly suppressed repeating. Of course some occurs—there are election districts where almost anything can be done by the dominant faction—but there is not much chance of it now. A man recently died in Chicago who had been mayor of the city and held other responsible positions and had a fair reputation in business, who within the past 40 years personally led gangs of repeaters from one ward in Chicago around the circuit of voting places in other wards.

Twenty-four years ago Harrison was elected over Cleveland, the campaign being conducted by Quay of Pennsylvania. The result was a great surprise to Republicans as well as Democrats, for the indications of Cleveland's election had been good up to the very end. There were towns in the rural parts of New York in which more ballots were cast than the number of males of voting age reported by the census two years later. One of the most eminent business men in the country, according to his own statement, raised a fund of $300,000 and put it into Quay's hands, and told him he didn't care to know what he did with it. Quay never did tell, but he carried the election. Almost immediately, from one end of the country to the other, went up a demand for the Australian ballot, which up to that time was known only in Massachusetts and to a few political purists commonly regarded as cranks. There was no investigation of the election of 1888, but there was a nation-wide demand for a ballot which should make electoral frauds more difficult.

It was at the election four years earlier that Colonel Dudley, who died not long ago, wrote his instructions to "divide the floaters into blocks of five." It was after that election that the Vice President-elect of the United States, soon to become President—and a very creditable one, too—made a jest at a public banquet about carrying Indiana, which was Dudley's state, "with —— soap," whereat the assembled company laughed heartily. No Vice President-elect at the present time would make a jest on such a subject.

There is a universal demand that elections shall be honest, and elaborate means have been taken to defeat the various sorts of fraud, violence and corruption. Of course they cannot be entirely successful, but it is quite certain that registration and the Australian ballot, although in most states the ring politicians have greatly mutilated it, have made frauds difficult. In New York, where there is the constant danger of Tammany methods, the election is supervised by the state, which is often of a different political complexion from the city, an additional safeguard.

The control of the United States Senate is very much in doubt. From present indications the Democrats will surely have 48 Senators, one half the full membership, and with the Vice President will command a majority. There are, moreover, several legislatures in doubt, and the success of the Democrats in any one of these will give them absolute control of Congress. In other states there are complications which may finally result in giving the party undisputed control of the Senate. The Progressive Republicans still in the Senate would doubtless support the Democrats on questions of the tariff, as they did last winter. Three or four of these Progressives are almost as liberal in their economic views and on other questions as the Democrats themselves.

A German physician, Dr. Frederick F. Friedmann, announces the discovery of what is believed to be a practical cure for every form of tuberculosis. He says he has treated 652 cases by his method, with invariable improvement and almost always with complete cures. If he has really found a cure for tuberculosis he has made one of the most beneficial discoveries in modern medical science.

The addition of Kansas, Arizona, Oregon and Michigan to the suffrage states will more than double the number of women who may vote in this country. Prior to the election Tuesday there were 894,227 women voters in the six states in which equal suffrage prevailed and the other four will make a total of approximately 1,942,700.

The voters of New York believe in good roads. In the recent election, by a large plurality, they approved a proposition to bond the state for an additional $50,000,000 to continue the work of improving the highways. In many of the central countries the vote was three to one in favor of the proposition.

The Rhode Island Grand Army of the Republic has lost three department commanders since the beginning of the year—William O. Milne, Francello G. Jillson and Charles H. Ewer, who served in successive years—1908, 1909 and 1910.

The remarkable successes of the Balkan states against Turkey continue. No war has ever shown such an unbroken series of victories on one side. The Turks are apparently completely demoralized.

THE BALLOT FOR THE NEGRO.

Restriction Needed, But it Should Apply With Impartiality to Both Races.

[Booker T. Washington, in the Century.]

No influence could ever make me desire to go back to the conditions of reconstruction days to secure the ballot for the negro. That was an order of things that was bad for the negro and bad for the white man. In most Southern states it is absolutely necessary that some restriction be placed upon the use of the ballot. The actual methods by which this restriction was brought about have been widely advertised, and there is no necessity for me discussing them here. At the time these measures were passed I urged that, whatever law went upon the statute book in regard to the use of the ballot, it should apply with absolute impartiality to both races. This policy I advocate again in justice to both white man and negro.

Let me illustrate what I mean. In a certain county of Virginia, where the county board had charge of registering those who were to be voters, a colored man who had long been a resident of the county, a quiet, unassuming man, went before the board to register. He was refused on the ground that he was not intelligent enough to vote. Before this colored man left the room a white man came in who was so intoxicated that he could scarcely tell where he lived. This white man was registered and by a board of intelligent white men who had taken an oath to deal justly in the administration of the law.

Will any one say that there is wisdom or statesmanship in such a policy as that? In my opinion it is a fatal mistake to teach the young black man and the young white man that the dominance of the white race in the South rests upon any other basis than absolute justice to the weaker man.

I have spoken plainly regarding the South because I love the South as I love no other part of our country, and I want to see her white people equal to any white people on the globe in material wealth, in education and in intelligence. I am certain, however, that none of these things can be secured and permanently maintained except they are founded on justice.

In most parts of the United States the colored people feel that they suffer more than others as the result of the lynching habit. When he was governor of Alabama, I heard Governor Jelks say in a public speech that he knew of five cases during his administration of innocent colored people having been lynched. If that many innocent people were known to the governor to have been lynched, it is safe to say that there were other innocent persons lynched whom the governor did not know about. What is true of Alabama in this respect is true of other states. In short, it is safe to say that a large proportion of the colored people lynched are innocent.

RAILROADING THROUGH THE SEAT OF WAR.

[Christian Herald.]

The traveler who wishes to visit Berœa in Macedonia takes a morning train on the well-built railway which connects Salonica with Monastir, an important Turkish town on the borders of Albania, noted for its constant outbreaks and scenes of brigandage. Such a train we took in the early days of 1912. The railway station at Salonica was guarded by scores of Turkish soldiers. Our passport was demanded and vized, for Macedonia was in a state of great unrest, not only because of the Italian war then raging, but for fear of an Albanian uprising. After the necessary preliminaries of having our names recorded, our passports vized and our tickets bought, we found ourselves in a comfortable second-class car, bound for the very city to which Paul was hurried away by night as though he were a criminal fleeing from justice. For a time the railway skirts the seashore, and we get glorious glimpses of cloud-capped Olympus.

The town lies about a mile from the station, and we find some ancient hacks, drawn by equally ancient horses, waiting to carry us up the hill. Before we can take a carriage, however, our American passport must be again vized, and our visiting cards handed to the police station master in order to assure him that we are neither revolutionists nor anarchists, nor Albanians bent upon the destruction of the city.

TAFT ON THE WILSON PRINCIPLES.

Asked Wednesday after the election, if he did not consider Mr. Wilson more conservative than radical, the President told the following story about Senor Diaz, head of the radical party in Cuba:

"Diaz was campaigning once," said the President, "and was accused of being a Conservative.

"'I am not a Conservative,' said Diaz, 'I am a Radical. I must speak as a Radical on the platform to keep my followers, but in office I am not a Radical.'"

MIDDLETOWN.

Funeral Services for Stephen Congdon Barker Held at Methodist Episcopal Church.

[Regular correspondence of The News.]

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon for Stephen Congdon Barker, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Barker, at the Methodist Episcopal Church. The wide sympathy extended the family was testified by the unusually large gathering which filled to overflowing not only the auditoriums but the adjoining Sunday School rooms, the reception room and entrance.

The long funeral party was led by the pastor, Rev. E. E. Wells, who preceded the body to the chancel, reciting "I am the resurrection and the life." Scripture reading and prayer were followed by the hymn, "Peace, Perfect Peace," by the ladies' trio, unaccompanied—Mrs. Ida M. Brown, Mrs. Edward E. Wells, and Mrs. John P. Peckham.

Rev. Mr. Wells spoke of the great bond of sympathy and regard which had brought such an extended gathering together. Everywhere had been heard the statement that Mr. Barker was a young man of a type which the town could ill afford to lose. Diligence and energy, added to Christian and college training had fitted him to be of service in the world, and he was always ready to bear his share of the burden. His last hours, though of great suffering, were filled with Christian hope. Prayer and the benediction closed the service at the church.

The body was in a gray broadcloth casket, on which were laid only the flowers from the wife and little daughter, a heart of pink and white carnations and ferns and a cluster of rosebuds fastened with gauze. The casket was embedded in flowers, which also completely filled the chancel and its vicinity and encircled the choir stall.

The ushers were cousins and neighbors—Clifton B. Ward, Chester Brown, William Whitman, David Brown, Julian F. Peckham and Crawford P. Earl, the last named from Kingston College. Spencer Brown and Walter Barker, cousins, and John Conley and Alfred Ward, neighbors, acted as ushers at the church.

Rev. Mr. Wells conducted the committal services at the grave, the interment being in the Barker lot in the adjoining cemetery. Most of the flowers were borne by the bearers, ushers and young relatives, who walked beside the hearse and followed on foot from the near-by church, forming a large circle about the open grave, still carrying the flowers. Loose pink carnations were dropped in upon the casket as the service closed.

There was a profusion of pillows and wreaths, besides quantities of clusters and bouquets, prominent among them being a pillow of white roses and white pinks and fern, with the words "Our Son;" a pillow of pink roses and carnations, with "Our Brother" in purple lettering; a large wreath of white and yellow chrysanthemums, from the town council, of which Mr. James H. Barker is a member; a large wreath of white roses, white carnations and ferns, on a standard of yellow and white chrysanthemums, from the bearers; a cluster of carnations, from the Epworth League, to which the deceased belonged, and a large spray of pink chrysanthemums tide with white streamers, on which were the letters in gold "W. C. T. U." from the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Kingston College was represented by two of Mr. Barker's former instructors, Professor George E. Adams of the department of agriculture, and Rowland Burdick, farm superintendent and instructor in dairying. The college flag will remain at half-staff for 30 days.

The gathering represented town officials and men prominent in the business life of the island.

The long looked for rain, which fell in torrents throuhg the night, was greatly needed, although it interfered with the attendance from out on the island at the Methodist Social Union in Newport.

Some of the Aquidneck Grangers attending the Little Compton "Neighbors' night" did not reach their homes until 2 A. M. Thursday.

PORTSMOUTH.

[Regular correspondence of The News.]

The Rhode Island Quarterly Meeting of the Society of Friends held the third session of the year Thursday in Fall River. There was a large attendance, especially from Portsmouth. The women ministers on the platform included Mrs. James M. Estes of Portsmouth and Mrs. John S. Kimber of Newport. Mrs. Richard R. Macomber sang a solo, "If Jesus had never died." The afternoon was devoted entirely to business. The Newport, Tiverton and Portsmouth members had just taken the car in Fall River for home when it began to rain. It soon increased till it fell in torrents, and when the Stone Bridge was reached a car full of women and men in walking across were drenched.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union met this week with its president, Mrs. Eunice A. Greene, with a good number in attendance. As there was no business of importance, the meeting was soon turned into a sort of reception which proved a delightful affair. Mrs. Towle of Maine gave an interesting talk about her work in the Soldiers' Home, almshouses and prisons of her native state. At the conclusion of her talk the members present were glad to receive Mrs. Towle into their membership. "Blest be the tie that binds" was sung and Mrs. Richard Macomber and Mrs. William Sowle sang a duet: "Do you love me more than these?" Mrs Macomber also read a poem entitled "I Cannot Get Beyond His Love," and Mrs. William P. Macomber rendered an instrumental selection. Light refreshments were served.

Dr. William C. Stoddard and family are preparing to return from their summer home to Newport and will take their departure in a few days.

There have been many changes this fall in homes in this vicinity. Some have moved out of town and others are preparing to do so, while still others have merely changed their location. Tenements are usually scarce here and bring good prices, but at present here are empty ones.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Duff of Taunton, with their family of three children, have returned there after living here several months.

The Ladies' Aid of the Christian Church met with Mrs. Joseph Barker Thursday afternoon and accomplished considerable sewing.

The Ladies' Benevolent Society held its weekly meeting Thursday afternoon, the attendance being smaller than usual.

TELEPHONES FOR DEAF MUTES.

[Popular Mechanics.]

A curious electrical device called a "deaf mutes' telephone" has been invented toenable those who cannot speak or hear to communicate rapidly not only with each other, but with persons who can speak and hear and are not conversant with the finger sign language. The inventor of this new "phone" and his wife are both deaf mutes, and they were assisted by their young son, who is almost blind, in the work of perfecting the device. Service to fellow-unfortunates was the motive that spurred them over countless difficulties. The "phone" comprises an electrical keyboard, somewhat like that of a typewriter. It has, like a typewriter, the "universal system" arrangements of letters. This keyboard is connected by wire with an electrical signal board which is the "talking machine" proper and consists of 36 incandescent light globes, each with a large letter of the alphabet or one of the nine numerals painted on the end of the bulb.

The person who wishes to talk presses the keys, spelling out the words as on a typewriter, the other person reading off the letters as they flash on the lamps. The keys come down on points of contact in the same manner as do the printing typewriter-telegraph machines. This does away with any false or lost motion and insures perfect contact. The keyboard, however, can be operated as quickly by an expert as an ordinary typewriter, and the letters can be read as quickly as they can be pushed up. Thusp ersons familiar with an ordinary universal typewriter keyboard could readily oporate the machine, and with a little practice become expert at it.

Two machines may be installed in separate rooms, or in houses some distance apart, and the conversation carried on at any time, lights being used instead of bells for signaling.

The device is also useful for silent signaling and conversation between two people of normal faculties who desire to keep their conversations secret. It is adaptable to code work and might be put to use in fortifications and on warships.

ANCESTRY OF THE REVOLVER.

[S. J. Fort, in Outing.]

Since the introduction of gunpowder as a propellant and the general use of firearms in warfare and hunting, there has been a more or less insistent demand for mechanisms that would give the soldier or hunter a number of shots at his command, without re-loading and enable them to be rapidly discharged. The first patent for a firearm of this description seems to have been issued by the British patent office in 1718, to James Puckle, a citizen of London, for a gun mounted upon a tripod, having a single barrel and a revolving cylinder. Strangely enough, one of the claims set forth in this patent appears almost verbatim, 130 years later, in a patent taken out by Rollin White, an American inventor of a revolving pistol. Another curious claim of the patent was, "The mechanism permits the use of square bullets against the Turk and round bullets against Christians; moreover, so great is the rapidity of fire, that ships armed with the gun cannot be boarded by any attacking force."

SEVERE STORM OF WIND AND RAIN.

Heavy Blow and Regular Downpour, But Little Damage Done.

Surf Along the South Shore Finer Than Any Seen for a Long Time.

The storm Thursday night caught the weather man napping. Others were ready for it. Coasting schooners and tugs were tied up at the docks or at anchor in the harbor, waiting for it. The weather man very late ordered the northwest storm signals up, and here again he was off, as the storm was over when the wind shifted to the northwest.

It began raining early in the afternoon, but that was only a feeler for the real thing. This started after 1 and it did seem that it rained some up to 6 o'clock. At least, folks noticed it most during these hours, but the gauge at the Water Works pumping station showed only .42 of an inch. From 8 until the rain finally ceased to fall, about daylight this morning, the gauge showed 1.25 inches, which was some rain. The total is 1.67 inches, or more than an inch and two thirds.

The wind had been from the southeast at the start. Along about 8 it shifted to southwest and just blew and blew and blew. It has blown harder, but between the blow and the showers it did seem like the real thing in weather. That damage was not reported seems almost a miracle, but there does not appear to have been any other than that done by the rain blowing through roofs where the shingles have become tired. It was a good test of roofs and windows for the winter season and any which stood this blow and rain are good for almost anything that may come this winter. Along about 1 o'clock this morning the wind did what the weather man predicted, swerved to the north. Then the storm was over, though it rained a little more.

People along the shore realized this morning, when they saw the long white rollers coming in and dashing against the rocks and sending spray far inland, that there had been a storm at sea. They say that not in a long time, if ever, did the rollers comb so off Beavertail as they did this morning. All along the south shore the waves dashed in and the breakers smashed and whitened against the rocks and rolled up the beaches. In the west passage they were seen as far north as Saunderstown and along the south Jamestown shore the display was fine.

At the beach the waves rolled some stuff over the sea wall and the creek bridge, but fortunately the tide was going down until after the shift of wind came. This saved a good deal of washing along the shores and reduced the chances of damage from the waves.

The waves are still rolling in and breaking, but not as fiercely as last night and early this morning.

Steamer Priscilla, bound for New York, remained tied up at Long wharf until 12:50 this morning, when, the wind having shifted, she left for New York. Steamer Commonwealth, bound east, arrived at 2:30, on time. Steamer Chester W. Chapin anchored off Jamestown until this morning, when she proceeded. Steamer New Shoreham, bound for Block Island, just looked out past Castle Hill this morning and came back. It was too rough.

None of the fisherman have been able to go to their traps today; even C. A. Easterbrooks men, were unable to haul. What damage was done to the traps can be told only when the sea goes down enough to permit an examination.

There are a number of tugs and coasters still in port, waiting for conditions to improve.

The northwest storm signal was set on the custom house and the wireless tower. The one on the custom house blew down.

SCHOONERS IN DISTRESS.

The Acushnet Responds to Call of the Herman Winter—Another Reported Anchored in the Open.

The Torpedo Station radio shortly after 3 o'clock this morning was sending into the air to all who might hear: "Four-masted schooner off Seaconnet, about one and one half miles off shore, flying signals of distress." Revenue cutter Acushnet was particularly wanted but did not respond promptly. The North Land of the Maine Steamship Company came in with the statement that she did not catch the full message the first time, but if it were sent again, slow, she could probably re-lay it to the revenue cutter, which was standing by a ship ashore off the East shop.

The message was repeated and a little while later the Acushnet reported that steamer Herman Winter had come off Hedge Fence shoal at 5:40 and the Acushnet was then proceeding in response to the second call. In the meantime a tug had left Newport harbor to go to the assistance of the schooner. Shortly after 10 o'clock the lookout at the Brenton's Point life saving station reported that the tug was standing by the schooner and the latter was trying to raise her anchor.

The station reported that at daylight this morning another schooner was anchored out in the open, but that she was about four miles off shore and had started again, after the wind shifted, of her own accord. The two schooners were also seen by various people along the cliffs, but both seemed to be holding their ground all right. The weather conditions had improved and they did not appear to be in any actual danger, though they may have been during the night, when a hurricane was blowing from off shore.

The schooner which displayed signals of distress off Seaconnet was the George Walcott of Portland and she has gone east in tow of tug Underwriter. If she was anchored for other reasons than the severe blow it is not known ashore, though those who were watching her were rather inclined to believe there was something wrong on board or her anchors were foul on bottom, since it was a long while after the tug reached her before she started. There was a heavy sea running.

Had there been a real demand for the Brenton's Po at crew they would have been at a decided disadvantage, since their power boat Ida Lewis is still at the boilders under repairs, and is likely to be for some weeks to come.

Taliamen Report for Trial of Gun Men Indicted for Murder.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Two hundred talesmen reported at the criminal courts building today for the trial of "Whitey" Lewis, "Lefty Louie," "Gyp the Blood" and "Dago Frank," indicted for murdering Herman Rosenthal at Charles Becker's bidding. Another murder case occupied Justice Goff's attention this morning, but it was expected that it would be concluded by noon, when the selection of the jury to try the alleged gun men was to begin.

Until last night counsel for the four men had insisted on a separate trial for each, but an eleventh-hour decision resulted in an agreement to try them together. It was expected that all four will take the stand in their own behalf. The state's chief witnesses will be "Bald Jack" Rose, "Bridgie" Webber and the other informers who figured so prominently in the Becker trial.

When the talesmen reported they were excused until 2 o'clock this afternoon, an hour at which it was thought the other murder case would be in the jury's hands.

REPORT UP TO NOVEMBER 1.

Census Bureau's Cotton Ginning Statement Gives 8,849,393 Bales.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—With today's showing, 8,690,894 bales, a greater quantity than ever before ginned to November 1 in any year, the census bureau's cotton ginning report issued today announced that 8,849,393 bales had been ginned in the United States prior to that date. Oklahoma's ginnings, 593,366 bales, also exceeded any previous year's report for that date. In the period from October 18 to November 1, there were ginned 1,976,682 bales, compared with 2,630,303 bales last year, while the average per working day was 101,824 bales compared with 184,357 bales last year.

Louisiana, with 861,686 bales, had ginned a greater quantity than last year, but in all states east of the Mississippi the ginnings were below last years totals.

HIGHER RATES JUSTIFIED.

Water Competition Recognized in Interstate Commerce Decision.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The Interstate Commerce Commission reiterated its recognition of water competition as justifying higher rates for intermediate towns, in disposing today of the petitions of railroads for lower tariff on lumber from the south to water-competing points at Ohio river crossings, but denied petitions not justified by water competition. The railroads were given until December 1 to indicate the exact relief to which they feel entitled under this decision.

WILL MEET WITH OPPOSITION.

German Petroleum Monopoly Bill Adopted by Federal Council.

BERLIN, Nov. 8—The German petroleum monopoly bill, intended to oust the Standard Oil Company from Germany, is reported to have been adopted by the federal council, with certain alterations, to assure the disinterested control of the company instead of allowing it to be placed in the hands of banks interested in oil production. The comments of party newspapers make it every day more evident that the bill will encounter serious opposition when it reaches the Imperial Parliament.

Friends of Pilot of Balloon Duesseldorff II Again Worrying.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 8.—Friends of John Watts of Kansas City, pilot of balloon Duesseldorff I, in the international James Gordon Bennett trophy race, again are worrying about him. Since he started in the race a week ago last Sunday, only one message, a cablegram of four words, has been received from him. It announced simply that he and his aid, Arthur T. Atherholt of Philadelphia, were in Pskov, Russia, and that they were safe and free. The cablegram was received by George M. Myers, president of the Kansas City Aero Club, last Sunday. Mr Myers believes that the two aeronauts have been arrested by Russian officials, who mistook them for spies.

The American embassy at St. Petersburg and the American legations at Stockholm and Copenhagen have been asked to aid in locating the missing men.

UNVEILING POSTPONED.

Shaft of Granite, With Car That Contains it, Either Lost or Stolen.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 8.—A huge shaft of Barre granite, with the freight car that contains it, has been lost or stolen somewhere between North Chili, N. Y., and the quarry in Vermont. The shaft is a memorial monument to the Rev. B. T. Roberts, founder of the A. A. Chesebrough Seminary and one of the first bishops of the Free Methodist Church. Churchmen and college presidents gathered at North Chili when the monument was to be unveiled. When the crowd reached the site of the memorial they found only the foundation and the ceremony had to be postponed. The railroads are trying to trace the shaft.

CHANGE IN POLICY LIKELY.

Preliminary Meetings to Federation of Labor Convention in Rochester.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 8.—The preliminary meetings to the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, which will convene Monday, continued today with meetings of the union label and metal trades departments, with delegates representing 600,000 workers of the union. The conviction of Gompers, Morrison and Mitchell, for contempt of court, and the fine imposed on the Danbury Hatters' case have aroused the federation and it is likely that they will be the chief points of debate at the convention. Many delegates express a belief that the Federation will adopt a radical change in policy at this convention.

A NATIONAL NAVAL RESERVE.

Necessary to Bring to War Basis Crews for Active and Auxiliary Fleets.

Enrollment to Include Line Officers and Men Capable of Skilled Labor.

More definite information regarding the formation of a national Naval Reserve is now given in a circular which has been issued by Acting Secretary of the Navy Winthrop. Regarding the necessity for such a reserve it is stated that in case of war a large force will be required immediately, to man the active fleet, which is yearly gaining in size and power, to complete to a war basis the complements of the ships of the active fleet and to commission an enormous fleet of auxiliaries.

The modern man-o-war requires that about 50 per cent of its complement be skilled labor, and hence it is planned to have the reserve organization so constituted that the special fitness of each man shall be recorded in order that, when called to duty, each shall step into the place where he can do most effective work. They are to be given an annual period of active service with the fleet. The plan does not contemplate a financial bonus to the individual, but to provide places of assembly, uniforming, equipping and pay, subsistence and transportation while on duty. For the officers and men who have honorably left the service there is to be a special part of the reserve called the Ex-Service Branch.

The requirements for enrollment are that one shall agree to respond to a call by the President for service in the regular navy in time of war or when war is threatened, that no person over 40 years of age shall be enrolled, though between the ages of 40 and 45 one may be re-enrolled, with membership terminating upon the reaching of the age of 45. Members may voluntarily enter active service in time of peace for periods not exceeding one year, for drill and other instruction.

Those to be enrolled are line officers such as lieutenants, lieutenants (junior grade), ensigns, assistant surgeons, assistant paymasters, warrant machinists and petty officers in all branches. Officers of the reserve are to have their names borne on the Navy Register, and if commanding private vessels shall have the right to fly a Naval Reserve burgee. They may be allowed to continue to wear the uniform of their rank after their membership shall have terminated because of age limit.

In time of war the officers shall be nominated by the President to the Senate for commissions as acting officers, but not above the rank they shall hold in the Reserve, except that officers who have resigned from the navy shall be commissioned in the grades held by them at the time of their resignation.

Every officer and man is to receive a certificate of enrollment, a distinctive button to be worn on civilian dress, and the right to wear the uniform under certain prescribed regulations. Those enrolled are to be exempt from service in the organized militia and from jury duty in the federal courts and may at any time, except during war sever connection with the organization. It is further provided that any member disabled while in the service shall enjoy all the privileges of the pension laws in force at the time of his service.

At the Washington navy yard an office of the Naval Reserve has been established to which all communications on the subject should be addressed though at present Commander J. H. Drayton of the Training Station in this city is compiling a list of all men who have been honorably discharged from the service and will welcome any such names with addresses which may be sent him.

OVERTAKEN BY THE STORM.

Young Man, Missing on a Hunting Trip, Spends the Night in Third Beach Shanty.

This morning Mr. Frank Curtis reported to the police station that his son, Frank H. Curtis, was missing. He left home Thursday to go gunning and it was understood was going in the direction of Lawton's Valley. He had not returned and his friends were naturally feeling anxious about him.

Later the police were informed that young Curtis had reported at home, safe but hungry. He was overtaken by the storm Thursday afternoon and put in at a shanty near the Third beach until it should pass. There was no let-up until this morning, when he came home as soon as possible.

International St. John River Commission Receives Engineers' Report.

BANGOR, Maine, Nov. 8.—The International Saint John river commission, a body of men appointed by the United States and the Dominion of Canada to investigate and report on the conditions and uses of the St. John river, which forms an important part of the northeastern boundary of the United States, and also on the feasibility and advisability of the conservation of water on the river and its tributaries, have received from the consulting engineers of the commission an important report embodying the result of two years' work of an expert engineering crew and the expenditure of many thousands of dollars.

In order to adequately improve the conditions along the St. John river for log driving purposes, the engineers suggest a scheme for channel improvement and storage of water to the present high water level, which will cost, according to the estimate, $471,510 for dams for the storage work and between $200,000 and $300,000 for the channel improvements. It is suggested that should the work be done, that the expenditure of the latter sum can be spread out over a number of years. In order to conserve the waters of the St John to their highest practicable point, which will insure plenty of water for the log driving industry and for the development of water power, the engineers claim that the cost of the dams will be $1,273,576. The cost in land damages is not estimated. The report is to be considered by the international commission at a hearing to be held in this city November 14.

Total Vote Cast for President in New Jersey Shows Falling Off.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 8.—The total vote cast for President last Tuesday in New Jersey, with a few districts still missing, will fall, it is estimated, at least 58,000 below the vote of four years ago, and taking into account that the normal increase in voting population since 1908 is figured at 25,000, the political managers estimate that the total this year was 83,000 less than might have been expected, in view of the unusual interest in the recent national contest. Based on present estimates, the total Wilson vote in New Jersey was 168,000, 14,000 less than the vote cast for Bryan in 1908. The combined Taft and Roosevelt vote was 221,000 in round numbers, 44,000 less than the Taft vote of four years ago.

Richard Tobin, another member of the Hillsborough millionaire colony, announced yesterday that he had sold three of his ponies, for use on eastern fields, at from $2,000 to $3,000 each.

LEGISLATION FOR THE FARMER.

Much Attention to be Given Agricultural Interests by Congress.

Government Aid for Reclamation of Swamp Lands—Sherman and the Speakership.

[Washington Correspondence of The News.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—It seems probable that much attention will be given to farming interests in future legislation. Not only has a start been made toward improving the roads in the farming districts, but it has also become the fixed intention of a majority of the members of Congress to see that the government takes an interest in everything pertaining to agriculture with a view to increasing the output of the farms. Reclamation of arid lands has been under way for several years with satisfactory results although the cost has generally exceeded the first estimates. In the near future there will be government aid in the reclamation of swamp lands, millions of acres of which have been lying idle for a hundred years near good markets.

Of course it is the intention of the men behind these movements to improve agricultural conditions, but the main object is to furnish available lands for the surplus farming population of this country and keep valuable citizens in this country instead of allowing them to go to Canada. The wild and vacant easily obtained lands of the far northwest furnished a glittering inducement to those who found themselves cramped upon lands in the big farming regions, but if the swamp lands are made available there ought to be homes for the surplus farming population within the borders of the United States.

Men in the Agricultural Department who have been giving the subject consideration say that unused and partially abandoned farm lands in several eastern states are available for farming purposes if scientifically and carefully conducted. More especially is this true in some of the southern states where Greeks, Italians and other southern European peoples have settled and are making truck and fruit farming pay "Back to the farm" is not a very alluring cry to many Americans who have put in more or less time on the farm, but the increasing foreign population ought to be attracted to agriculture in view of the good profits obtained.

Jim Sherman was an aspirant for the Speakership. It was when Henderson was elected and again when Uncle Joe Cannon was chosen the New Yorker had his eye open if there should come an opportunity. Once at Chicago after Cannon thought he was absolutely safe, Sherman and the Illinois man met at a ball game in Chicago.

"Jim, are you going to be a candidate?" asked Unce Joe.

"Can't say," replied Sherman. "A lot of fellows in the House have been writing me to get in the race, and I don't see how I can disappoint them." Uncle Joe looked very thoughtful, for he knew that Sherman was the best parliamentarian in the House and might make a hard fight.

A little later Sherman remarked: "I am not going to be a candidate, but I want to give the old fox a few days of worry. It will do him good."

One naturally supposes that a tablet commemorating some important event would be erected where it could be seen, but such is not the case regarding one in the Interior Department. On the top story of that building, far from the line of office travel even, is a stone tablet recounting that the building was burned in 1877 and rebuilt a few years later, giving the names of the architects and builders and stating that Carl Schurz was secretary at the time. It seems a curious place to put the tablet.

All during the illness of Vice President Sherman the Senate had a presiding officer by unanimous consent. The Senate is deadlocked on the election of a president pro tem, so when Sherman went away the Senators bridged over the difficulty by having first one and then another man selected for a short space of time. When the session adjourned last summer provision was made that Senator Bacon of Georgia should preside a portion of the time and Senator Gallinger of the New Hampshire for another period. This will carry the Senate a few weeks into the coming short session.

If any one man chose he could deadlock the Senate when the present truce expires by objecting to unanimous consent and forcing an election. It would probably result in the withdrawal of Senator Gallinger as the Republican caucus nominee and the selection of some man on whom all could agree.

Jim Sherman attracted the attention of Tom Reed soon after he entered Congress and was known in the days when the big Maine man was running things as "one of Tom Reed's young men." Like a great many others who won their first Congressional spurs during the exciting period of House parliamentary reform, Sherman was a great admirer of the brilliant and versatile Reed.

Mrs. Grover Cleveland, who is soon to surrender that name, was one of the most popular women the White House has known. She was a mere girl when she first went there to marry Mr. Cleveland. When she returned in the second term she had become a woman of world affairs and gave the White House a tone which made her famous. While the Clevelands were domestic and very much interested in their children, yet the social side was never forgotten and Mrs. Cleveland's career as first lady of the land was a decided success.

The management of the social side of the White House so as to please mosta people and offend the least possible number is an art; or, perhaps, it is simply a characteristic of a sensible and considerate woman.

Ever since he has been in the Senate John Sharp Williams has been trying to get a bill through providing for a monument to the Confederate soldiers at Vicksburg. Senator Heyburn of Idaho always prevented the bill from passing. Now that Heyburn is no more Williams will have an opportunity to pass his bill.

If postoffice officials could get it out of their heads that the people of the United States and not a few officials are paying the expenses of the postal service it might be easier to get better results. One reason for interfering with the regular distribution service of periodicals was because it cost too much, in the opinion of certain officials. Now it is pointed out that some $7,000,000 or $10,000,000 will be required to put the parcels post system in operation. Suppose it does? The people want it. There is a rural free delivery service. It costs a lot of money, but the people want it and have been willing to pay for it. And it is the same with the parcels post. The people are willing to pay for this service, just as they pay for other government service.

About the time the people were making it very uncomfortable for the pugilist Jack Johnson in Chicago Senator elect Ollie James made this observation: "He's getting off a mighty sight easier in Chicago than he would south of the Ohio river. The people of Kentucky and some of the other states would have made short work of him." It is probable that the champion prize fighter of the world will not visit the South for some time to come.

PLATINUM'S MANY USES.

The mineral called platinum is really a natural alloy of platinum, iridium, rhodium, palladium and often osmium, with varying amounts of iron, copper and gold, according to the United States Geological Survey. It is usually found as small nuggets, scales and rounded or irregular grains; its color is steel gray. The specific gravity of the crude platinum varies from 14 to 19. The percentage of the metal varies also within wide limits, usually from 70 to 85 per cent. Platinum is almost wholly produced in California and Oregon, and the output for the United States is practically limited to these states.

Owing to its high melting point and great resistance to acids, platinum is extensively used for laboratory utensils. Platinum salts are employed in chemical analysis. In the manufacture of sulphuric acid the metal has been used in making large concentration kettles, but of late gold has been substituted for it. In photography, dentistry and electric installation much platinum is used. Of late the manufacture of jewelry has consumed large quantities of it. It is extensively used for chains and for the setting of diamonds, the claim being made not only that it is more resistant than silver and harder than gold, but that the stones are better offset by platinum and appear larger than in any other kind of setting.

Owing to the high price demanded for platinum during the last two years a great demand for a substitute has arisen. At one time much platinum was used in the manufacture of incandescent lamps, but it is now almost entirely replaced by tungsten. Platinum triangles, used extensively in laboratories, have recently been successfully replaced by similar appliances made of an alloy of nickel and chromium. Nevertheless, there remain so many industrial applications of platinum for which no substitutes can be found that it is not likely that the price will be much cheapened in the future.

The present extensive use of platinum in the manufacture of jewelry is stated to be unfortunate, since other metals can be substituted for it, and this fad is undoubtedly one of the principal causes of the great increase in the price of platinum.

CURED ECZEMA ON HANDS

"Eight years ago I got eczema all over my hands. My fingers fairly bled and itched until it almost drove me frantic. The eruption began with itching under the skin. It spread fast from between the fingers around the nails and all over the whole hand. I got a pair of rubber gloves in order to wash dishes. Then it spread all over the front of my chest. A fine doctor treated it for two weeks, but did me no good. I itched night and day. Then I decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment, but without much hope as I had gone so long. There was a marked change the second day, and so on until I was entirely cured. The Cuticura Soap is now always kept in our home and we decided after that lesson that it is a cheap soap in price and the very best in quality. My husband will use no other soap in the family mug." (Signed) Mrs. G. A. Selby, [illegible] Beach, Cal., Jan. 15, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, but to those who have suffered much, lost hope and even lost faith in any treatment, a liberal sample of each together with 32-p. booklet on the skin and scalp will be mailed free, on application. RED CROSS WORK IN TURKEY.

Appeal for Assistance During the Balkans War Issued by the National Society.

The following appeal in behalf of the Red Cross work in Turkey during the present Balkans war has been issued by the National Red Cross Society:

It is difficult to bring home to the public in this country the appalling suffering involved in a winter war in the Balkans. Communication is difficult, the cold is intense, and even rudimentary transportation is a matter of extreme difficulty. Moreover, the fighting in this particular war is likely to be of an especially bitter and severe character, while on the other hand the medical organization available is quite inadequate to cope with the large numbers of wounded.

Reports have been received both from our diplomatic representatives in Turkey, the Balkan States and Greece, and from the Red Cross Societies, of the desperate conditions of the thousands of sick and wounded and the inadequate medical service. With these reports have come urgent appeals to the American Red Cross for aid.

The British Red Cross and those of continental Europe are sending out medical detachments of doctors and nurses and hospital supplies in order to mitigate in some measure the terrible suffering entailed by such a winter campaign.

Because of the distance, the American Red Cross will not send expeditions of trained personnel, but it earnestly appeals to the generosity of our people to aid the sick and wounded soldiers of all the countries involved.

Though an armistice may be declared, the great number of sick and wounded must be cared for during a number of weeks and the troops must remain under arms in the field for months during the severe winter weather, with all the suffering and sickness this will entail.

The services of the American Red Cross will be rendered impartially to all the combatants concerned, but it is, of course, open to any subscriber to designate a donation for the special assistance of one or the other of the belligerent parties, and instructions to that effect will be strictly observed.

Contributions should be sent to the American Red Cross, Washington, D. C., to Mr. Jacob H. Schiff, Red Cross Office, United Charities Building, New York City or any other local Red Cross treasurer.

"SOL" CASWELL HEARD FROM.

For some time past a certain section of Long wharf, part of the old Long wharf before the Greeks came, has been anxious about the whereabouts and welfare of one of the old-timers, "Sol" Caswell had not been heard from since he left with the circus last summer. Some of the boys said he must be dead, else he would have sent a picture postal or something home. Others said Sol was not hiring any private secretaries and had no time to write, but was likely to drop in at any time. All recognized the fitness of things when Sol went away with a circus, but that he should have stuck to it so long was what bothered every one.

The mystery has been solved. A letter received from Jacksonville stated that Sol was seen there recently with the Buffalo Bill show. He sent his regards to his friends at home, the Newporter who saw him agreeing to write and let people know that Sol was still very much alive. The folks on the wharf are satisfied. They were right, too, for Sol quit the circus for the Wild West Show.

A TIVERTON ASSAULT CASE.

Manuel Raposa, his face showing no less than 13 different scars, which he says were given him by a knife in the hands of Frank Regio, was the principal complainant in an assault case tried before Judge Franklin this morning. The cutting affray happened outside a saloon in Tiverton, October 14. Regio had threatened to cut Raposa's throat and throw him in the river, so the witness said, but was prevented by the timely arrival of another Portuguese. Raposa claimed that all he had done to provoke the assault was to criticise Raposa for "skipping" another man in the saloon. It was said that they had been good friends previous to the assault; that they had slept in the same cell in the Tiverton jail, but Raposa denied this. The witnesses testified through Mr. Manuel Vargas, the court's Portuguese interpreter, notwithstanding the fact that some of them had been 16 years and longer in the country. When the noon recess was taken the case was still on.

by a large number of efficient young women as waiters. The menu included chicken salad, cold meat, ice cream, cake and coffee, and was abundant and excellent. The president of the Union, Mr. F. P. Webber, was in charge during the evening, and grace was said by Rev. W. H. Bath of the Thames Street Church.

During the interval between the supper and the address an opportunity was given to meet Dr. Oldham, which was embraced by a large number of those present.

There was also a short business meeting, at which a large number of names of new members were approved, and two amendments to the constitution were adopted, the effect of these being to change the annual meeting from spring to fall, the new year to begin with the present session. This having been done, a new election of officers was held, the retiring board, with one or two exceptions, being again chosen. The officers are as follows:

PROPOSED MERGER DISCUSSED.

The Farmers' National Congress in Convention in New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 8.—Delegates to the thirty-second convention of the Farmers' National Congress, which met here today, discussed a proposal for the merger of all agricultural associations. The advantages of a merger were urged by Assistant Secretary Hays of the Department of Agriculture and he suggests the American Grange, the national farmer union, for membership. What action would be taken today was not indicated by a preliminary discussion last night. More than 300 delegates, representing practically all the Southern states and about 20 states of the Middle West and West, were registered early today.

POLICY OF SILENCE ADOPTED.

Roosevelt Says He Has No Further Comment to Make on Election.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Colonel Roosevelt motored to New York from Oyster Bay today, and visited his editorial office for the first time since he was shot. He said that he had adopted a policy of silence and had no further comment to make on the election. He was feeling fine, he said, and had almost forgotten there was a bullet in his chest.

NEW YORK LETTER.

Thousand-Foot Docks Save Supremacy of the City as a Port.

Parisian Labels Faked on Suits—Highest-Priced Animal in the World Sails Away.

[Correspondence of the News.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—New York, it is at last announced, is to have thousand-foot docks, and in this decision the city is congratulating itself on the satisfactory settlement of the greatest commercial problem which it or any other municipality has ever had to face, in which nothing less than the supremacy of the port was threatened. So rapid has been the growth in the size of ocean-going vessels in the last few years that New York docks have failed to keep pace with them, and when the 800-foot dock arrived there were many who held that the limit had been reached. Hardly had these docks been completed, however, when the need of still longer ones appeared. One trans-Atlantic line, for instance, will have a 912-foot monster in operation next spring, to be followed by one 950 feet in length, and another still larger. Under the existing conditions it would be impossible for these leviathans to dock here, and New York has been confronted with the choice of lengthening her docks or seeing her foreign commerce diverted to other ports.

Ordinarily the decision would have been simple, but the docks which now line the two sides of the river already jut so far into the stream as to make navigation difficult and often dangerous in the part which remains available. Engineers have argued that to narrow the fairways by another 200 feet, through the lengthening of the docks, would make it too narrow for the movement of the huge vessels. It is only after long deliberation that the army engineers of the New York harbor line finally decided to recommend the extension of certain docks to the thousand-foot mark. So New York can again breathe easily, at least, temporarily. Should ocean steamships increase in size in the next 50 years as rapidly as they have in the last half century, it is pointed out, it would be a physical impossibility to build docks big enough to handle them on the North River, so that New York may eventually be faced by the necessity of losing her commerce or selecting a new harbor.

That Parisian labels do not necessarily mean Parisian gowns is the most disturbing feature, from a feminine point of view at least, of the discovery here of a trade that comes so little short of a downright swindle that nobody but a customs officer can tell the difference. But, though this questionable trade has been brought to light, no one has yet been seen rushing to the front to do anything about it, and it seems doubtful whether any one will. It seems that women's tailors and clothing manufacturers here have a habit of sewing the labels of well-known Parisian firms into suits that are made on our own soil, and sending the garments out to the retailers as genuine Paris creations. Not only do they do it, but they do it openly. They import the labels in bundles. Not only that, but the fraudulent labels or, rather, the labels which obviously can only be used for fraudulent purposes—are recognized by the government as legitimate goods, and "named articles" dutiable commodities under the tariff and hundreds of dollars of duty are collected on them every season.

A clothing manufacturer, who has a collection of several thousand of these labels, showed samples bearing the names of Worth, Paquin, Callet, Alphonsine, and a dozen or more others. It is said that the high duty charged on these imports have given rise to a new industry here, and that 10 or 12 American firms now manufacture similar labels which counterfeit the foreign marks. Though the profit is not so great as that to be made from counterfeit money, the trade is absolutely safe. It is said to be growing rapidly.

The highest-priced animal in the world, valued at nearly a sixth of a million dollars, sailed from here the other day as a passenger on liner Minnewaska. Lamentations long and loud have gone up over that departure, for Rock Sand, the world's prize stallion, goes as an emigrant to France, and unless something very unexpected happens he will never come back. Rock Sand, a stunning piece of horseflesh, has been owned for years by August Belmont. Since the anti-gambling laws have put an end to horse racing here on anything like the old scale, race horses have, of course, been a drug on the market, and the loyal betting men, who insisted that the breed of American horseflesh must be improved, have had an opportunity to lament the exporting of many fine animals before now. And they are lamenting Rock Sand.

There was a moaning of the bar when he put out to sea that would have done credit to the Prophet Jeremiah, or a trustworthy Wall Street man just before election. The anti-gambling people have always contended that the horses that would be driven out of the country by suppressing betting were race horses so highly specialized that the lost strains would never have done any good to American horses in general, however much they might improve the racing breed. Rock Sand has been sold to a syndicate of French breeders at a price which is reported to be $150,000.

New Yorkers have been told so persistently that they are ruining their digestions and their lungs and hearts and livers and brains and killing themselves off generally by the life of the metropolis, that they have come to look upon themselves as a short-lived race and let it go at that. But there is one spot hereabouts which, while not actually in New York city, is still well within the high tension area of the metropolis where the life of nowadays is not as deadly as it is said to be. At least nothing has hindered the breaking of all the American records for longevity there.

In the suburban town of Long Branch, over in New Jersey, it was discovered at a birthday party the other day that seven of the guests were, collectively, 651 years old. The eldest, William Redmond, was 102; four ladies were 97, 95 and two of them 91 respectively, and two men were 90 and 88. Besides these in the town, which is only a good-sized commuters' village, there are no less than 45 people who are 80 years old or more. It is believed that Long Branch outdistances all other American communities of its size, even the famous old villages of New England, in its facilities for storing oldest inhabitants.

The city government has at last taken notice of a fraud which has been running for years with doors wide open, on the Broadway sidewalks exactly where that great street is at its brightest and busiest. The fake "auction rooms" have been exposed, and Mayor Gaynor is expected to do something vigorous about it before long. The fake auction "game" is the simplest in the world, and the places have been run in such a barefaced style that it seemed unlikely that anybody could be fooled into buying there, although the crowds inside the rooms showed that that has been far from being the case. The story is that the mayor passed one of the Broadway places on his way to the theatre recently, and was so struck by its "fakey" air that he ordered an investigation. The articles put up for sale—curios, cheap "art works" and the like—are of course practically worthless, and a crowd of hangers on who are in the employ of the management bid up everything that is offered to exorbitant figures, so that no outsider can get a bargain. These auction fakers have a slang all their own. The confederates taken together are known as "schilliber," which is the plural form of the word; the singular, meaning a single fake bidder, is "schill." A prospective bidder is called a "rummy" and any genuine bidder is a "sucker." The victims are usually visitors from out of town, though a surprising number of New Yorkers have "bitten" and repented in silence as usual.

ANOTHER RACING SCHOONER.

Commodore Clark of the Philadelphia Corinthian Club Gives Second Order.

Two large racing schooner yachts will be built at the Herreshoff shops in Bristol this winter and be ready for next summer. Scarcely had the commission of Mr. Harold S. Vanderbilt for one of these vessels been received when Commodore E. Walter Clark of the Philadelphia Corinthian Yacht Club also gave an order for a similar craft. Commodore Clark is the owner of schooner yacht Irolita, formerly the Queen, which was built several years ago by the Bristol firm for the late J. Rogers Maxwell. After considering the design furnished by the Herreshoffs he decided that the plans would give opportunity to send his craft successfully against the Elfera of the same class, owned by Commodore Morton F. Plant of New York.

An order was received at Bristol Thursday from Mr. Clark for the new schooner and the steel materials for sheathing and for frames was ordered as soon as the commission was received. As two large schooner yachts are to be built at the shops this winter, the firm will be put to a test of considerable proportion, since but one of the big 100-foot craft can be built at a time in the present shops.

FALL RIVER FRANCHISE SOLD.

Change in Ownership, But to Remain in City, Announced at Meeting of New England League.

The New England League of Base Ball Clubs, at its annual meeting in Boston, Thursday, voted to sanction a movement to secure the passage of a bill allowing the playing of professional base ball in Massachusetts on Sunday.

The meeting was marked by the announcement of a change of ownership of the Fall River franchise, which was declared forfeited. Upon the payment of certain debts the franchise will go to Messrs. Pieper of Lawrence, Reese and Gray of Lowell and Frazer of Lynn, who advanced money to pay the salaries of the Fall River players. They plan to dispose of the franchise to one of several bidders, but it was said that it probably will stay in Fall River. No change in the league circuit of next season is probable.

Next year's playing schedule will consist of 136 games, to be disposed of in 118 playing days. It will begin Wednesday, April 30, and close Saturday, September 13. These dates are one week earlier and one week later, respectively, than those last year.

The salary limit was the subject of a lengthy debate, following which it was voted that $2,000 shall be the maximum account to be paid by each club monthly, including the salary of a player-manager. It was voted to require each club to deposit a surety bond for $1,000 before the schedule meeting to cover its responsibilities in this connection.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the league, which preceded the league meeting, the championship pennant for the season of 1912 was formally awarded to the Lawrence club.

NEW SAVINGS BANK RECORD.

Reports to the controller of the currency on the savings banks of the United States show record deposits and the greatest number of depositors in their history. June 14 there were 1,925 savings banks, holding aggregate deposits of $4,450,232,523 for 10,009,804 depositors, the average deposit being $444.64. While the number of banks, compared with 1911, increased only 41, the deposits increased by more than $235,000,000 and the depositors by more than 216,000. The average deposit account increased $14.55. The per capita savings in the United States, computed from savings banks accounts, was $46.52, the highest on record.

The controller, who received these reports largely from state superintendents of banks, said that especial interest attached to them because the deposits are chiefly the accumulations of wage earners.

DAVIES SEES PRESIDENT-ELECT.

Wilson's Attention Called to Suggestions for Extra Session of Congress.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 8.—Joseph E. Davies, Governor Wilson's western campaign manager, called on the President-elect today and told him the details of how Illinois and some of the other doubtful western states went Democratic. The governor's attention was called to statements of Oscar W. Underwood and other Democratic leaders that they deemed an extra session of Congress advisable to revise the tariff.

"I noticed Mr. Underwood's statement. I have read several editorials also about immediate action," was the only comment the President-elect made.

The postman who has the Wilson home on his route has had to secure help. Today on one trip alone he carried 1,000 letters. This is the daily average now. Most of the letters are congratulatory, though not a few contain suggestions. The President-elect is going to try and answer most of them before he goes away on his vacation. He planned to spend the day at his correspondence.

Tomorrow he expects to see the football game here between Princeton and New York University. Next Tuesday, he said today, he will go to Trenton as usual, for the transaction of state business.

HIS OLD COLLEGE ROOM.

Things in Princeton Assume Historical Value With Wilson's Election.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 8—With the election of Woodrow Wilson as the twenty-eighth President of the United States, a great many things in Princeton have assumed an historical value. Chief among these is the room occupied by Woodrow Wilson Princeton 1879, Valcou'on Ellicott, the Princeton Sophomore, who now occupies room No. 7 in Witherspoon Hall, did not know when he got it that it was historic. When he put a black coat of paint on the mantel and puttied up its various carvings of initials and records of athletic victories, he fears that he covered up the initials of "T. W. W" '79, for it was as "Tommy" W. Wilson the President-elect was known in his college days. It is said that he later dropped the first name, so as to have a name of 13 letters, because he believed 13 a lucky number. No initials can be found, however, that mark the one time presence of Wilson, the undergraduate. College flags and the decorations of another age adorn the walls, but above the study desk is a campaign drawing of Wilson, with his signature on it.

The Woodrow Wilson room is on the second floor of Witherspoon Hall, a gray stone building, erected in 1873 when Wilson was a Junior in college. On his walk through the campus in the last few days the President-elect has looked up affectionately at the window of his old room and pointed it out to those accompanying him. "I did a lot of studying in that room," he said. The room overlooks the open country, where the battle of Princeton was fought in revolutionary days. Only a few hundred yards away is Nassau Hall, where the first President of the United States came to receive the thanks of the Continental Congress for his services in the revolution. In another direction, not far away, is the building of the Whig Society, founded by another Princeton graduate, James Madison, who also became a President of the United States.

WAR TO CONTINUE TO BITTER END.

lomatic effort to save Constantinople for his country—in fact, a German paper publishes a despatch from Sofia which says Kiamil Pasha has already approached Bulgaria direct to begin negotiations for peace.

The situation at Constantinople itself continues to cause grave apprehension. Many foreign warships are gathering there, while batteries have been placed on the heights to the north of the city and machine guns on the bridges between Pera, the foreign residential quarter, and Stamboul. With a fanatical, armed mob running loose, however, the lives of Christians will, it is thought, be in serious peril. To the other horrors threatening the Turkish capital must be added that of a disease something like cholera, which is said to have been introduced by the fugitive troops from the front.

While in some quarters it is believed the omens are favorable for an amicable settlement of the political situation arising out of the claims of the Balkan allies, and of the determination of Austria that their ambitions shall not be realized, it is difficult to adjust the two points of view. It is said that Germany, Austro-Hungary and Italy will agree to let Servia have a port on the Aegean sea, but Servia wants part of Albania and a port on the Adriatic sea, and her armies are now pushing in that direction. In other quarters it is believed the only hope for a settlement is for Servia to give way.

Russia has taken a step which is likely to cause further uneasiness by keeping the time-expired soldiers of her army with their regiments during the winter, which means that her army will be on a war footing until next year.

RUSSIAN ARMY ON WAR FOOTING

Time-Expired Soldiers to be Retained in Active Service Until Spring.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 8.—The Russian government has decided to retain all the time-expired soldiers of the Russian army in active service with their regiments until next spring. This places the Russian army practically on a war footing, as the order affects several hundred thousand men, whose places would, in the ordinary course, have been taken by the same number of recruits who have just been called up. It is announced that the government has taken this step as the best means of preventing war and it is thought that this can only mean that the government foresees the possibility of complications arising out of the Balkan situation. The detention of the time-expired men will entail a cost of many millions.

LOSS ESTIMATED AT $100,000.

The Town of Brookneal, Va., Nearly Wiped Out by Fire.

BROOKNEAL, Va., Nov. 8.—Fire of unknown origin almost wiped out this little town early today and caused a loss of approximately $100,000, hardly one fourth insured. No lives were lost. Twenty-five buildings, including the postoffice, a bank, 11 stores, a tobacco warehouse and the Baptist Church were burned.

TO ENSURE FUTURE POSITION.

Bulgarians See Necessity of Peace With Turkey Through Balkans.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 8.—The Bulgarian cabinet maintains the absolute necessity of any peace negotiations with Turkey being conducted directly with the Balkan nations, in order to ensure the future position of the various states involved and to prevent the danger of further conflict after the war has ceased.

The government organ Mir expresses surprise that Turkey recognizes her defeat, but yet ignores the victors and continues to seek salvation from the powers. The newspaper remarks that such mediation in the past has proved costly for Turkey, territorially, and, if persisted in now, may see her Asiatic empire to become a second Egypt.

DISEASE AMONG THE WOUNDED.

Inhabitants of Silivri Massacred by Fugitive Turkish Soldiers.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 8.—Fugitive Turkish soldiers are reported to have massacred many of the inhabitants of the village of Silivri, on the coast of the Sea of Marmora, to the southwest of the Tchataja forts. The fleeing soldiers, who were in a state of semi-starvation and utterly demoralized, are said to have set fire to all the houses in the village. A disease resembling cholera has broken out among the wounded Turkish soldiers arriving in Constantinople.

TAFT MEETS HIS CABINET.

Ideas Presented by Members for Messages President Will Write.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—President Taft met his cabinet in regular session today for the first time since August, when he started for Beverly on his vacation. With the exception of the Secretary of State Knox and Secretary of the Navy Meyer, every member was in his seat. Stenographers do not report cabinet meetings, but the laughter which penetrated the walls and was heard in the corridor of the executive offices, indicated that Tuesday's defeat has not brought gloom to Mr. Taft's official family.

Subjects considered at today's meeting were many. From the election to the filling of several vacancies, the discussion covered much ground. The messages which Mr. Taft expects to write in the next few weeks were taken up and ideas for them presented by members of the cabinet.

It is understood in Washington today that at present no cabinet member intends to quit office until March 4. Several members let it be known months ago that they expected to retire March 4, even if Mr. Taft was re-elected, and several were known to be anxious to get back to private life before that date. The feeling of loyalty to the President, however, is expected to keep every cabinet officer at the head of his department until the administration itself goes out of power.

ASSURED OF SUPPORT.

Taft Planning National Republican Clubs Throughout Country.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—President Taft today received the first assurance of support and co-operation in his plan to organize the principles of the Republican party by the organization of a National Republican Club, with branches throughout the country. The President received a telegram from Kansas City stating that Jackson county Republicans met last night and formed such a club.

Noon—The reactionary trend of the market yesterday became more pronounced today on mixed selling of long and short stocks. Bearish sentiment was intensified by rumors of an extra session of Congress and cables from abroad suggesting farther uneasiness at leading centres. London's level of prices for our securities was decidedly lower. The heaviest issues here included Louisville & Nashville, Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific, Reading and Steel. In fact, all stocks of speculative importance were under pressure. Beet Sugar held its place as weakest of the specialties and tobaccos also fell abruptly. Bonds were easy. A PROTEST.

Trees Given by Resident in Wellington Park District Being Removed by Park Commission.

To the Editor of The Daily News:

Dear Sir: Some time ago a resident in the Wellington Park district gave to the city of Newport certain trees which were planted along the road on the north, with the double object of improving and beautifying the newly reclaimed land and of affording a much needed shade in summer for those whose business or pleasure induces them to walk along the sunny and wind-swept stretch from the gas works to Harrison avenue. These trees had just begun to serve the desired purpose, after careful fostering and tending, when, to the surprise of the donor, a number of them were transplanted to decorate the plot of ground on the south of the road, which has quite recently ceased to be used as a city dump. There is no desire to criticise the Park Commission for wishing to beautify such an unsightly spot, but it is more than doubtful whether they have a right to remove trees, given and accepted for one place, to any other, at their will or caprice.

At present even more drastic measures are in progress. Of the remaining trees every alternate one is being uprooted and moved off, and this protest is made in the interest of the people for whose benefit the trees were given. It is to be hoped that the Park Commission will see the propriety of at once giving orders to stop the work.

Last summer the trees had already begun to cast the desired shade, which was evidently much appreciated by the women and children thus sheltered from the glaring sun. The donor proposed to give more trees, so as to continue the line along the land recently protected by the new sea wall, thus completing the line along Wellington avenue. This would in a short time add another charming driveway to those we already possess, and be a valuable asset for the city. She offered to give the Park Commission other trees, equal in number to those they proposed to uproot, if they would leave these trees as they were originally planted. They were not intended to be a row of perfect nursery specimens, but were given in order to add to the beauty and comfort of King Park and Wellington avenue and many of us would like to hear from the city solicitor whether a gift, offered and accepted for a certain definite purpose, may be legally diverted from that end by any local authority.

Newport, Nov. 8, 1912.

LEAVING FOR LOUISVILLE.

Ex-Senator Sanborn to Attend Meeting of Committee on Program for Perry Celebration.

Ex-Senator John P. Sanborn will leave tonight for Louisville, Ky., to attend a meeting of the committee on celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the Perryp victory, of which he is the chairman. This committee will have full charge of arranging the program for the big celebration at Put-in-Bay, Ohio, next September, the other members being John M. Whitehead of Wisconsin and George W. Parker of Michigan.

The city of Louisville, which is greatly interested in the anniversary celebration, is preparing to give the members of the committee a great reception. There will be a monster mass meeting next Tuesday evening, at which the principal address will be made by Mr. Sanborn. Other speakers will include Colonel Henry Watterson, the veteran editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal and one of the most distinguished citizens of the South, and other members of the executive committee of the Perry centennial.

Ex-Governor Augustus E. Willson of Kentucky, who spoke before the Young Men's Republican Club in this city last week, is a member of the Louisville committee.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS.

The recently elected officers of Newport Council, Knights of Columbus, were installed Thursday evening by District Deputy Frank E. Fitzsimmons, who found the Council's affairs in excellent condition. The new officers are as follows:

Grand Knight— Mortimer A. Sullivan.
Deputy Grand Knight—Henry A. Martin.
Chancellor—Louis J. Barry.
Treasurer—Edward A. Martin.
Advocate—Jeremiah A. Sullivan.
Warden—Daniel J. Shea.
Inside Guard—Frank Cing-Mars.
Outside Guard—Patrick Connell.
Trustee, for three years—Michael Shea.

After the installation ceremonies the members entertained the district deputy with a social session in the clubroom in the Gas building.

The retiring grand knight, Cornelius C. Moore, will at once take up his duties as district deputy, to which he was some time ago appointed by the state deputy.

ACTION ON LICENSE APPLICATIONS DELAYED.

Thursday evening the License Commission met to look over the applications for the coming year. There were 69 in, but in view of the fact that some had not complied with the conditions and submitted bonds the applications were incomplete. The board voted to allow until Saturday morning for the filing of bonds. It will meet then and take up the applications and advertise such as are complete.

ALL RETURNS NOT IN.

West Virginia May Elect a Democratic Governor.

WHEELING W. Va. Nov. 8.—Failure to secure figures on the results of the voting in McDowell county, the home of Dr. H. D. Hatfield, Republican candidate for governor, brought out the prediction from Democratic leaders here today that Thompson, (Dem.) had been elected. McDowell county had been credited with a plurality of 4,000 for Hatfield, but not a precinct has been reported and Democrats are claiming that there was something more than a possibility of an even break these, in which event Hatfield's plurality in the state would be wiped out and the official count next week would be required to decide not alone the governorship, but the remainder of the state ticket.

Bishop Oldham's Address at Annual Meeting of the Methodist Social Union.

It takes more than a driving rainstorm to keep most members away from a meeting of the Methodist Social Union, and though Thursday evening's weather was a pretty severe test they stood it well. Not often is it possible to hear a Bishop Oldham at that or any other gathering in this vicinity, and many would have braved even worse conditions rather than forego such a privilege. Though a stranger to a New England audience, his reputation as a missionary enthusiast and an eloquent speaker had preceded him, and was well sustained by his inspiring and illuminating address on this occasion. Born in India, spending nearly all his adult life in Asia, serving the church for eight years as missionary bishop in the Philippines, a position which he resigned last May upon his election as one of the secretaries of the Foreign Missions board, he seems almost steeped in the atmosphere of the East and so fully imbued with its spirit and at one with its aspirations and its needs as easily and naturally to impart to his hearers some measure of his own enthusiasm for his subject.

Introduced to speak upon the Philippines, Dr. Oldham, after brief words of pleasure at the opportunity to address the Union, said he preferred to take another and broader topic, the present conditions in "non-Christian lands. With reference to the Philippines, however, he expressed the earnest desire that the people of those islands shall be given the right of self-government as soon, but no sooner, than they "come of age." At present they are not old enough as a nation to bear the burdens and exercise the privileges which we Americans, with all our years of experience, too frequently use unwisely.

Coming to his self-chosen topic, the bishop said affairs in the non-Christian nations seem to have reached a crisis unprecedented in the history of the world a crii never paralleled in the past or to be paralleled in the future, the culmination of the movements of the ages. In China, the oldest, the most conservative, the least responsive, among the nations, supposed to be sleeping the sleep of centuries past and centuries to come, we have seen a stirring, an awakening, a revolution and—most amazing announcement in current history the birth of a Chinese republic. In India, more profoundly religious than any other nation, where religion is not merely an incident but a passion, and is based upon and closely interwoven with the whole social system and the national life, there is moving a spirit of unrest which is but the struggle of the ancient aristocracy against the young democracy, the rising of the masses of the people beginning to realize that they too are men. Hinduism vs. Christianity. In both these countries and in lesser degree in other non-Christian lands, the greatest moving force underneath and behind these wonderful changes is the Christian idea and the Christian ideals of life.

Among all the influences which are being exerted upon these non-Christian peoples none is more forceful and effective than that of this youngest of nations, America. Not content with solving her own great and perplexing problems, she is going out to exercise a wide and powerful influence upon these older civilizations. And among the religious and missionary agencies at work in these lands none is more efficient or potent than the Methodist Episcopal Church. Many of the leaders in the revolution in China and in the new republic were trained in her church schools and missions, some of them directly under the care of the speaker. Though India is a British dependency, the American missionaries have an advantage over the English, because they are in no way related to the British officials or connected with the government, and hence are subject to no suspicion of other than disinterested and altruistic motives. In both these countries a very large proportion of the missionary workers, and also of the Christian believers, are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. God has wonderfully blessed our nation, in the opportunity for service which He has given us. With this opportunity He has placed upon us great responsibility. As he has given much, so He demands much. Shall we as a church be faithful to the trust placed in us and do our share in the furtherance of these great movements?

Although intensely serious in thought and purpose, the address was frequently enlivened by anecdote and by flashes of native wit which seemed quite irrepressible. At times the speaker touched a deep and tender personal note, and again rose to heights of eloquent appeal which bore his hearers with him.

As Secretary Oldham arrived late and was obliged to take the New York boat, the musical program was delayed until after the address. Although the selections suffered somewhat by being given in succession instead of at intervals, they were all effectively rendered and were received with much favor. Mrs. Gertrude Downing Holman was the soloist, giving first "Morning," from "Summertime," song-cycle, by Lan-Jon Ronald, and as an encore "A Little Winding Road," by the same composer. Her second number was Carl Bohm's "Calm as the Night," and she responded to another recall with "I Know a Lovely Garden," by Guy d'Hardelot. Miss Dorothy Rooney's two violin numbers were Cavatina, op. 314, No. 2, Carl Bohm, and Mazurka, E Mlynarski, and her encores Gavotte, op. 214, No. 3, Carl Bohm, and Madrigale, A. Simonetti. Miss Alice C. Banning was the accompanist for both singer and instrumentalist.

In spite of the hard rain at 6:30, the hour for assembling, a large company was present, representing the three churches in the Union, and a few minutes later sat down to supper. This was served at long tables in the Sunday School room by the members of the Ladies' Aid of the First Church, where the meeting was held, assisted

THE EVERY MEMBER CANVASS.

Urged as Scheme for Enlisting Renewed Interest in Church Work.

Dinner for Men of Trinity Parish, Addresses by Bishop Perry and Others.

A dinner was tendered to the men of Trinity parish Thursday evening at the guild hall on High street, at which were present a number of prominent churchmen, besides Bishop James DeWolfe Perry, Jr. The gathering, numbering about 100, was seated at eight small tables placed about the hall. The bishop, Rev. Stanley C. Hughes, chairman of the evening, and the other principal guests sat at a long table running diagonally across one end, among them being General William Ennis, George Gordon King, J. I. Greene, Colonel Herbert Bliss, Colonel William J. Cozzens, Dr. Francis A. Corbett, Pay Director I. Goodwin Hobbs, Dr. Alexander J. Anderson and Mr. Robert C. Cottrell, besides the visiting clergymen. The walls of the room were draped with crimson on a background of green, while upon the stage where the orchestra was seated was an arrangement of palms and ferns. A corps of women from St. Martha's Guild served the dinner under the direction of Mrs. Edward G. Brown.

After the dinner, which was over about 8 o'clock, cigars were lighted and addresses were in order. Rev. Mr. Hughes said one of the objects of the meeting was to arouse renewed interest in the work of the parish, particularly in the interest of the board of missions. He said Trinity had been doing her share and more so far as missions were concerned, and he felt that the men were interested in the work.

Bishop Perry, on being introduced, desired to acknowledge the support which Trinity had given in the past to the various forms of missionary enterprise. He spoke particularly with reference to the "every member canvass plan," which is a scheme for interesting and enlisting every man in the parish in the work of the church. The duplex envelope system has been introduced in parishes everywhere and has proved a great success. In order to have a comprehensive view of the work, we must feel, said the bishop, that we are members of the church, not only of our own parish, but outside as well. The every member canvass is a thoroughly systematic idea, which has worked out satisfactorily; it makes a difference when all are working for the interest of the church, and the church feels it when even one place in its ranks is vacant.

Rev. J. H. Klaren told how the every member canvass had worked out in Pawtuxet. He described in detail the plan, which is for every member to contribute a stated sum through the duplex envelope system. He had made a personal visit among all the members and explained to them how it works. In consequence last year his church paid five times its share towards general missions.

Rev. A. M. Hilliker spoke in behalf of missions in general. It is important to enlist men in all activities of church life. The work in the mission fields calls for tact and skill; that is why the church is sending out the best men it has for this work. In order to secure results we must have money; money is the medium of exchange, and it is through the money we give that results are obtained in the mission field.

Mr. L. D. Learned, senior warden of the church at Ashton, described briefly how the every member canvass had worked in that town, where many of the parishioners are mill workers and not able to give much. One thing which it accomplished was that it brought the members closer together, in a spirit of brotherly feeling.

Mr. George Gordon King, who spoke last, told two stories very much to the point and spoke of the need for the men to rally to the support of the church finances. Old Trinity has never failed to do its duty, he said, but the running expenses are a heavy drain on its resources. The church is an expensive institution and there is need of more general giving. He urged a good attendance at a meeting to be held next week to talk over plans for systematizing the method of giving.

Rev. Mr. Hughes said he hoped there would be a good number at this meeting, and then invited the gathering to stay and meet Bishop Perry.

There was dancing during the next hour, the men having for partners the young women of St. Martha's Guild who had been active in serving the dinner. The Newport Mandolin Orchestra, led by Professor Lodter, furnished music.

MADE HER DEBUT AT TWELVE.

How Blanche Ring Was Turned Down When She First Tried Her Voice Before a Singing Master.

Blanche Ring, who is to be seen in "The Wall Street Girl," made her stage debut, as she says, when she was 12 years old. The stage, however, was in the chapel on Bulfinch place in Boston and the entertainment was a Sunday School concert. The child soon begged to go on the stage and her uncle was so enthusiastic regarding her voice that he decided to take her to George Sweet, then one of the greatest singing masters in the country. If Mr. Sweet should approve, the girl was to be sent to Europe and her voice cultivated.

Full of hope, and with her head held high in proud anticipation, the young girl was giving her try-out test. The big master shook his head.

"No use at all," he said, positively. "Couldn't make that voice heard outside the parlor."

"Well, we'll see," said Miss Blanche. "I guess there are as many good teachers here at home—I don't mean you, either—as there are in Europe. If you think I am going to shut my voice up in a parlor you are mistaken."

It wasn't long after this that she went to New York, determined to make a name as big as that of her grandfather, Jimmy Ring, for many years principal comedian in the Boston Museum Stock Company. That she succeeded is evident. She sprang into favor with the singing of "In the Good Old Summer Time" and since then has probably popularized more songs than any singing comedienne on the American stage.

Before becoming a star Miss Ring appeared in leading roles with some of the best known comedians in the country, including Jefferson De Angelis, James T. Powers, Joseph Weber, Lew Fields, Harry Connor, Peter Daly, Alexander Carr and Frank Daniels.

A PLAY WORTH SEEING.

Trial Scene in "A Butterfly On The Wheel" Gives Insight Into English Court Procedure.

In spite of the severe storm a large audience gathered at the Opera House Thursday evening to see "A Butterfly on the Wheel," written by Edward C. Hammerdi, K. C., and Francis Neilson, M. P., and produced under the direction of Messrs Shubert and Lewis Waller. It is a play worth seeing, especially as it gives an insight into the mode of procedence in English divorce courts and the difficulty under which accused witnesses testify. The scene in the third act, showing a divorce case on trial, is a remarkable exemplification of the latitude which the English law permits to counsellors and the restrictions placed on witnesses.

The hearing of the witness in this case, the wife of Rt. Hon. George Admaston, M. P., was a remarkable study, and her denunciation of the law a realistic stage picture. When the woman in the play swooned, and fell to the floor of the witness stand, she struck her head and was in reality rendered unconscious. This explains in response to the hearty applause at the end of the act.

The company was a good one. Esther Evans as Peggy (Mrs. Admaston) was excellent in the early acts and rose to a remarkable height of dramatic force in the courtroom scene. The accident manifestly affected her work in the closing act. John Davidson as Collingwood, William Wilks as George Admaston, and Lewis Broughton as Sir Robert Fyffe, the prosecuting attorney, were well suited to their parts. Percival Aylmer as Lord Ellerdine gave a pleasing comedy touch to the play. Christine Brooks as Lady Atwill and Gail Trulit as Pauline, Mrs. Admaston's maid, were also excellent. The play was appropriately staged, adding to the completeness of the production.

The audience was appreciative of the good things in the drama, and gave the principals hearty curtain calls at the end of each act.

COUNCIL CALLED TO ACT.

Until the Meeting, November 18, Chief Kirwin Will Provide Feed for Fire Horses.

The Board of Aldermen held the weekly meeting Thursday evening, and in addition to transacting regular business decided to call a meeting of the Representative Council for Monday, November 18, to take action in regard to the matter of food for the fire department. In the absence of Mayor Boyle President Shepley presided.

The weekly pay rolls were approved for the following amounts: Streets and highways, $1,639.89; police, $950.76; fire department, $526.24; city officers, $262.35; firemen in theatres, $36.

The pay roll of election officers, $800, was approved; also, bills of six of the election officers for taking ballots and returns to Providence—W. H. Tobin, William Power, Daniel E. Kirby, Dennis F. Houlihan, Harold M. Sherman and Charles Dawson, $8 each.

A petition was received from Elnas S. Johnson and others, asking for a street light about midway on Vaughan avenue. It was referred to the alderman from the Fifth ward, with power.

Alderman Laddy reported that a light on upper Prospect Hill street had failed for several nights in succession and reports to both the day and night police had not resulted in having it lighted. Chief Kirwin, who was present, added to this tale of darkness by reporting two more which he had lighted. No action was taken.

Then the matter of provender for the horses of the fire department came up, and the city solicitor said it was too much a matter of fact for any advice from him. He had given the law in the case to the board, but of course it was evident that the horses must be fed. Alderman Hughes moved that the matter be referred to the Representative Council, to make such transfers as seem best. Alderman McLeish suggested that the board authorize the chief to buy forage pending action by the Council. The chief seemed to think the board had no authority to do so, but he volunteered to bridge the financial chasm until the Council takes action and see that the horses do not starve; also, that no more bills for forage come in until after the Council has made an appropriation by transfer or otherwise.

Incidental to the main question it was learned that oats are now back to normal, 32 cents, and hay has fallen from its lofty pedestal or $34 to about $20, so that it does not cost so much to feed horses as it did.

POLICE BUSINESS.

The police had one man up for drunkenness this morning. He pleaded guilty and also made an eloquent plea to the court, but in view of the fact that he was minus the necessary coin he went to jail. Two men, for revelling on Thames street—a fight, it seemed to be—were fined in all $9.60 and $7.60. They paid and were discharged.

The two men arrested for fighting on Washington square Thursday morning and fined for assaulting the officers were this morning taken to Cranston to serve out their fines and costs. The two sailors fined for assault paid and were released.

The police have been collecting bicycles until they have five on hand, waiting for owners to claim them. The storage room is about full.
